W. J. O. BOURCHIER, C. P. R. land agent has a short communication in another column in which he corrects a misstatement of the BULLETIN to the effect that a Mr. Foster who is charged with having appropriated to his own use funds paid to him on account of C. P. R. land sold, was an agent of the C. P. R. land department. The point is not important to the general public, and Mr. Bouchier's correction is freely accepted; but in case the readers of this journal should imagine that carelessly worded and incorrect statements appear in its columns it may not be out of place to mention that the money said to have been improperly held by Foster was a second payment on certain C. P. R. lands, the first payment on which had been made to Foster and duly turned over to the company by him without any kick from the company so far as heard from. This does not constitute Mr. Foster an agent, but it justifies the general public in looking upon him as such.

REV. MR. HANNA DEAD.

It was with surprise and sorrow that the people of Edmonton heard on Tuesday evening that Rev. Geo. Hanna, pastor of the Methodist church, Edmonton, was dead.

Death occurred about six o'clock in the evening after an illness lasting about two weeks. The cause of death was rheumatic fever, which having run its course throughout the system attacked the heart. While it was generally known that Mr. Hanna was ill, it was not supposed that his illness was serious, but he was never a very strong man, and his constitution had been further weakened by an attack of la grippe during the winter. Mr. Hanna came to Edmonton in June of last year as pastor of the Methodist church, which position he has filled acceptably since. Before coming to Edmonton he was stationed at Medicine Hat for two years, where he made many friends. He leaves a wife and one child, an infant. The relatives of the deceased and of Mrs. Hanna have been communicated with as to the funeral arrangements which are not yet completed, but the services will probably be held in the Methodist church to-morrow. The deceased was born in Ontario County, Ontario, and was in the thirty third year of his age.

Owing to the miners' strike and consequent scarcity of coal, the Grand Trunk railway authorities have notified the Toronto board of trade that it is necessary to largely curtail the train service. An available supply will be retained for the running of passenger, mail and perishable freight trains, and shippers have been notified that the company, until further notice, can only receive for transportation provisions and general merchandise of an urgent character. Other freight will not be received unless under special authority.

BLACKLEG.

The communication from C. W. J. Haworth, V. S. which appears in another column is one which should have the most careful attention of all farmers and indeed of every person in this district. Cattle raising and its joint industry of dairying is one of the most important if not the most important in this district, and anything that makes against the success of that industry here touches the welfare of every one. It is a fact that must be deplored that the disease whose symptoms Mr. Haworth so clearly describes, and whose fatality he vouches for, which was unknown in this district until last fall, has re-appeared this spring, and has already caused some loss to farmers. If the disease is as fatal and as easily spread as Mr. Haworth says—and as it is well known to be—the situation is grave in the extreme, and every possible measure of prevention and cure should be resorted to until it is stamped out. Unfortunately, if the ideas set forth are correct, this district is one in which this disease may be expected to be hardest to control and drive out. The rank growth of grass and the abundance of water seems to offer peculiarly favorable conditions for the spread of the disease, and the method of letting the cattle run at will during the summer, seldom seen or looked after, except the milking cows, also favors its spread. This appears to be a case in which the danger is so great as to call for interference by the highest authority. It is a simple matter of fact that if the prevention of the spread of the disease depends on the deep burial or total destruction by burning of animals which have died of the disease by the owners of the animals, the disease will continue to spread. If each farmer's cattle were confined to his own home-stead as in Ontario it would be a very easy matter to make each man bury or burn his own dead cattle. Or if cattle were branded with registered brands as in the ranching country of the South, something might be done to compel burial or destruction by owners. But in this country where cattle are not generally branded, and roam at will over all vacant lands, it is plain that there will be extraordinary difficulties in the way of compelling owners to go to the expense of burial or burning unless so inclined. Should the disease spread an animal may be dead for days or weeks before the owner actually knows of it, and it may be other days and weeks longer before his ownership can be proven and he be compelled to bury or burn. No doubt many people will look carefully and properly after their cattle, but no doubt also many people will not, and the carelessness of some will injure all. In the provinces the matter of contagious diseases of domestic animals is dealt with by the provincial governments. In the Territories however the Dominion government has taken the cattle industry under its special fostering care. This being the case it is the duty of the Dominion government to take prompt and vigorous action towards controlling or extinguishing this disease in this district. The mounted police have done whatever has been done, so far, and have rendered good service, both last fall and this spring, but if the disease continues to exist, as it well may, some more comprehensive and thorough system of dealing with it will have to be provided. The department of interior was notified of the existence of the disease here last fall with a request for active intervention. A long circular describing the disease was received in reply and that was all. It requires to be distinctly understood by all parties that although the losses from this disease have not yet been heavy, the danger of heavier losses is so great as to require the combined efforts of the settlers and the government to remove the danger so that the district may continue to prosper. This is a matter that might well be taken up by the various agricultural societies, with a view to securing united action amongst the farmers, and also to awaken the Dominion government to a sense of its responsibility in the matter.

CONCERNING ATHABASCA.

To the Editor of the Free Press.

SIR—I would beg to point out that the account which appeared in yesterday's issue of an interview by me of your reporters does not state correctly my remarks. With regard to the number of Indians in Athabasca, I stated that I had heard 7,000 as the approximate number given by a census taken about two years ago, but could not vouch for it. The next is a more serious misstatement. I am quoted as saying: "There are three things which must be attended to by the Canadian government." I do not wish to pose as a dictator of what the present or any other government should or should not do for the Indians here. They are, for one thing, not within treaty limits. The substance of my remarks in answer to questions by your reporter were these:

The Indians in the north are quiet and peaceable. I do not say that there is no possibility of an outbreak, should evil counsellors go among them. The safest policy is to make it illegal to sell to them or allow them to possess rifles. This is no hardship to the Indian, who finds in the smooth bore muzzle loader all he requires. Any action on the part of the government to protect the large game up there might operate in preventing white men from killing during the close season, would be difficult to enforce it on the Indian. I stated the fact that large tracts of valuable timber were every year being burnt. Being asked whether I thought the game was decreasing, I stated that while the large game was so, I would not say how it might be with the smaller furbearing animals, where numbers ebb and flow, but that these fires must tend to diminish them. I made no statement of "reckless slaughtering by white adventurers." In the main the other statements are fairly correct.

Permit me to correct the statement appearing in your issue of this date that the prisoner Foster now under trial for fraudulent conversion of money, was an agent of the C. P. FROM MATABELE LAND.

The following letter was received recently by C. Sandison from Dave D. Reed who in company with Dan McPhadden and Frank Kernohan left for South Africa in the fall of '92.

Bulawayo Matabele Land,
March 9th 1894.

DEAR SIR:

You will no doubt think me very neglectful for not writing before, but your letter of July 30th '93 was only received to-day. I would have written before without waiting for your letter if I had only been settled. After finishing my contract in the coal mine in the Transvaal I came into Johannesburg, intending to go back to America, but finally concluded that I had not seen enough of Africa. So I purchased six donkeys and a van, also shot gun and rifle, and started from Johannesburg on the 25th of July '93 for a trip up country. I was 70 days on the road, had a grand time, saw all kinds of game but the white elephant that I promised to bring back. I arrived in Fort Victoria, Mashonaland, on the 6th of November. The British South African company was going to war with the Matabele tribe of negroes for murdering and robbing the Mashonas. I sold my turn out in Fort Victoria and went in the war as a scout. My experience as a scout I have not time or space to give, but will tell you there are lots better jobs than shooting negroes, especially when there are hundreds against you. One trip we had to live on our starving horses. Horseflesh without salt is not the most desirable meal. We lost 33 men in one massacre. They got detached from the main column, and had it not been for our machine guns not one of us would have been left to tell the tale, as a war with these negroes is not for terms, but extermination. But luckily we were well provided with Maxims and shell guns. It would do you good to see the Maxims work, shooting 600 times per minute, and with four of them turned loose on the advancing enemy they worked like a mowing machine. With these and several shell guns the company was able to wipe 30,000 negroes with only 1,000 men. The war was over and peace declared on the 25th of December, and we were able to peg farms and mining claims. I have a farm on the Luella river, 3,000 morgen or 6,200 acres, 5 miles long and a little over 2 miles wide. I have two blocks of mining claims each 150 feet by 1,500 in one block. The company in addition to the farms which we all received, recognized my extra services as scout by furnishing me with money to develop my mining claims. Everything is very high. Dynamite is four shillings a pound. Boer meal or unsifted flour, £10 per bag of 100 lbs, about $25 per hundred weight. I have two shafts sunk, 30 feet each, but I do not get as good prospects as I expected. Plenty of visible gold, but the rock does not carry as well all through. However, I expect to develop a little more. I have already spent about £200 on the Scout's reef. I am afraid I will not be able to float it if I do not strike it a little better further down. This is a grand country. Plenty of grass going to waste. The grass is higher than my head all over my farm, but unfortunately this is a very poor stock country. Both cattle and horses are subject to many diseases. The fever is very bad also. I had it once and do not want it again. I think I will go back in about a year if I can sell out to suit me.

MILLERS' TOLLS.

Mount Pleasant, May 15th 1894.

EDITOR BULLETIN:

SIR: Having taking occasion to write a few words regarding legislation for the miller, a person signing his name "John Smith, Farmer," seems to have taken umbrage at what appeared by inference to be written by a miller. I gave it as my opinion based on long experience, that all should have legislative enactments compulsory in respect to their business as well as the miller. But according to Mr. Smith I don't know. So if I should make a wrong assertion you must attribute it to my ignorance. However, I will try to make what I did say as plain as possible. First he asserts, I pretend to show that millers are justified in exorbitant and scandalous charges for two principal reasons. Now I do not pretend, but I know whereof I speak in this matter, namely, all the mills built in the Northwest cost from 10 to 15c. per lb. freight on all machinery imported previous to railway transport, and a mill built previous to rail facilities cost treble what the same mill would cost in Ontario. There has been only one mill built since the coming of the railway into Edmonton, and I believe it was built by an Ontario firm. I suppose it is run on Ontario principles, and its tariff is the highest of any in the district. But Mr. Smith says he is prepared to prove by a complete and exhaustive set of figures, that if the cost is greater it is not more than one ninth. Now he must be a practical miller or he he has jumped at conclusions, his figures notwithstanding. If he is a practical miller, all I can say is that it is a dirty bird that delights its own nest? As Mr. Smith says at present we do not know what he the miller takes. I suppose he alludes to me, and for his very intelligent information, would say I take no more than I can get from the mill I cultivate. But if he alludes to the Alberta millers I can only refer him to an advertisement which appeared in the BULLETIN in the beginning of the grinding season, by the Edmonton Milling Co. Which gave the No. pounds of flour, shorts and bran given in exchange for one bushel of wheat, and if I know—but I do not of course—it was just 1/2 of the bushel in return, or 1/4 for the exchange. I have taken grain to mill to be ground and have made as many as three trips for the privilege of having a grist ground, but in truth I must say that I always got a good return from said grain so ground. Now he states for our benighted information that he has a friend (?) who took grain to a mill and received 45 lbs. to the bushel in return, and the said friend again took grain to mill one fortnight later and got in return 24 lbs. to the bushel. Now he is very particular to state that it was the same grain from the same heap in the same granary off the same field to the same mill &c. But he fails to state as particularly that it was in the very same condition; for one or two weeks may change the very condition from good grinding and milling wheat to stuff not fit for feed, in the very same granary. Climatic conditions have a very great effect on grain for milling, and he knows (?) several such cases (?) As to competition, the less there is, he says, the surer the miller is to be employed. How does he know this, by actual experience or hearsay. If by either way his knowledge is not in accordance with facts. That there is less risk of loss of all kinds and the more grain he grinds the less necessity of grind in the farmer. Now if the said Smith will show me one farmer who has been properly run through the mill and the dust knocked out of his brain I will show you a farmer who does not want every one put under the ban of the law but himself. He says that I use assumption and disdain really uncalled for, that milling is an art not acquired at the plow handle. I still maintain the point of whether with disdain or otherwise. Of course he admits it with disdain, as that is his only logic. He says if milling could be acquired at the plow handle there would not be so many bad millers. I assert that it is by not learning any business that so many would-be business men are a failure and throw disgrace on any calling. Now he asks if his following the plow is any reason he should not get fair treatment. I assert that fair play is bonnie play always. He quotes E. Raymer as an example charging $10 for cleaning a watch just to let the miller know that watchmaking was not learned in a flour sack. Oh? Great Scott, is that not crushing in the extreme. Now Mr. Smith puts or attempts to put words in my mouth by saying, If farmers would quit taking grain to mill the millers would become as honest as any other person in any other branch of business. Consistency then art a jewel in Mr. Smith's hands. I did say and maintain it that if farmers would grow as good wheat as possible and sell it at the best possible price and buy flour to the best advantage and quit the old foggy notion of gristing, then and not until then millers would be as honest as men in any other branch of business. He accuses me of winding up with the breezy and unvarnished declaration that do as we may the millers of this free country will beat us for all time to come. I do not need any wind just now, but when I do I know to whom to go for a fall supply. From the ideas advanced by Mr. Smith, Ontario is not a free country, nor shall this be long, if the population increase at the present rate a little while longer. His little hard working group will in a few years learn that if they want to succeed in this free country that they too must learn to understand their business and stick to it or they may find themselves in the same boat that the farmers of the Western States did some few years ago, when the farmers set the price that railways should haul their grain for. Simply they will not be in it worth a cent. Farmer Smith winds up by quoting the great things the plow handle has done. Granted; he is no doubt a great scholar and knows. But I am not and don't know. Cincinnatus no doubt might have followed a plow, and as well did Mr. Lincoln, but they must have had other training than what could be attained at a plow tail. It does not necessarily follow that a young man brought up on a farm, who leaves the farm for other fields of duty or calling, that the credit should be given to the farm training for the mark he makes in the world. Neither does it necessarily follow that being born on a farm that he must be a farmer. If such be the case, he would if born in a pig pen be a pig. As the said Mr. Smith accuses me of being a miller, if he will take the trouble to come and see me he will find me at some employment on a small patch of land he calls a farm, and ready and willing to vindicate the rights of any calling be it farming, milling or any mercantile or professional business without fear or favor. As I have tried to enlighten Mr. Smith's intelligent mind as to who I am, should he wish any tain. Further in my line, he will please call personally and

Oblige yours
J. KNOWLES.

"BLACK LEG" "ANTHRAX".

"This is essentially a blood disease, affecting all animals from man down even to mice, also poultry and birds. It is due to a germ or bacillus, ("bacillus anthracis") It is generally found in low lying land, in sloughs, pools of stagnant water and even in rivers. It is taken into the system with the food and water. The germ has been found adhering to the grasses grown on low lands.

The most general symptoms in cattle are: The animal is generally thriving well and all at once goes off its feed, muzzles dry, rumination suspended, (loss of cud) vacuol eye with reddish hue and sometimes small red spots are seen in the eye, heavy head, ears droop, tender over the loins, ribs and flank. After a time tumors are felt in these parts and may be seen in limbs, if so the animal will be lame. Pulse quick and feeble, mouth hot and dry, bowels become constipated, urine scanty and high colored. The tumors or swellings crackle when rubbed, animal is stiff and lies most of the time. In some cases convulsions set in and in others loss of consciousness and apparent paralysis. In some cases we have a premonitory fever. The muzzle is dry, appetite capricious, bowels irregular, skin harsh, urine high colored, back arched and general unthrifty appearance. These cases if not attended to soon develop the graver symptoms and death ensues. The treatment for this disease is mainly preventative. It being a blood disease. The blood being in a fluid state and of a deep purplish hue.

The treatment is to try and alter the blood and bring it to its normal state. In a bad case, or a case in which the symptoms are fully developed, the animal is usually dead before the medicine has had time to work. Death ensuing in from 5 minutes to 30 or 40 hours. Externally foment the affected parts with very hot water and dress with carbolic oil, (say 1 part of acid to 4 or 5 of oil) Where the diseased parts are dead (cold to the touch) apply equal parts of ammonia turpentine and oil to the surrounding parts, or use mustard and turpentine rubbing well in. Give internally 3 times a day 2 to 3 drachms chlorate of potash and 5 to 10 drops of carbolic acid in a pint of water. Feed on good easily digested food and after convalescence has set in give the sulphate of iron in 2 to 3 drachm doses twice a day for a week or two. I would recommend as a preventative that all the stock, especially the young ones, up to 2 years old in infected regions be dosed with 2 to 3 drachm doses of sulphate of iron twice a day for a week.

Carcasses of diseased animals should be buried 6 feet under ground with carbolic acid and lime, or burned.

Yours Truly

ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY CONCERT.

The final concert of the season was given by the Edmonton orchestral society on Tuesday evening in Robertson hall. It is only fair to the members of the society to say that on this occasion they fairly surpassed themselves in the kind and quality of the music rendered. The numbers taken by those who are not members of the society were also exceptionally well done in every case. The following is the programme rendered:

OVERTURE.....La Coronne d'or.....Alph. Herman.
Orchestra.
SCENES.....By the Fountain.....S. Adams.
Missa Cookson.
encore "Hei! Ho."
INSTRUMENTAL DUET.....Lo! the gentle lark.
Sir H. Bishop.
(Orchestral Accompaniment, Flute, Dr. McNeil; clarinet, J. B. Spurr.)
REDONA.....Ceres.....Biviere.
Orchestra.
PIANO QUARTET SONATA.....Allegro in C. op. 40.
J. Haydn.
(Piano, Mr. Anderson; Violin, Geo. Purches; cello, Fred Cory.)
SOLO.....Afterwards.
Miss Ward.
encore "Snowflakes."
WALTZ.....Auf Wiedersehen.....Bayley.
(Orchestra.)
HICKORY SONG....."He's in the Asylum now."
Mr. Fred Cory.
GALOP.....Spur of the moment.....Hosfield.
Orchestra.
SELESTION.....Bohemian Girl.....Balf.
(Orchestra.)
DUES.....Mr. McBride and Miss Ward.
encore "Star of the Twilight."
TRIO.....Allegro in C. op. 2.
Mozart. Purches, McNeil and Cory.
TITEL.....The Michaelis op. 120.
Orchestra.
SYMPHONY.....The music commences with an adagio movement for strings representing night, gradually takes up to the dawn of day; the grasshopper chirps, the frogs croak, low, the lark and thrush burst into joyous song to welcome the rising orb of day. The singing of the morning breeze and murmuring brook is heard, and forest life is awake; the village clock strikes five, and the smiths arise and sing their morning prayer and proceed to their labor. A polka tempo introduces them at their work and the ring of the anvil is heard from the smithy.
ENCORE.
SONG—"The man who stole the bank at Monte Carlo"
Mr. Cory.
encore.
GLORIA.....12th Mass.....Mozart.
Orchestra.
SONG.....Anchored.
Mr. McBride.
encore "Annie Laurie."
CHARACTERISTIC DANCE—"Pickin'innies."
Milton.
Orchestra.
God Save the Queen.

Mrs. McBride and her sister Miss Ward made their first appearance before the Edmonton public on this occasion, and their efforts brought out the applause they fully deserved. Mr. McIntyre, who only appeared once before—in the "Rose Maiden"—singing with feeling and spirit. Miss Cookson, as always, took her part admirably. Of the number of pieces given by the orchestra "The Forge in the Forest" was the most expressive, and was given in a style that could scarcely be surpassed by professionals. It is to be regretted that the attendance was not nearly as large as the merits of the entertainment deserved. This made no difference to the performers who took their parts with full spirit, throughout; but it is scarcely to the credit of the place that an entertainment of the very best class, which could not be surpassed in many places then, the size of Edmonton, was not better patronized. Good music and a good entertainment is better than had music and a bad entertainment, but if good music and good entertainments are to be given they must be patronized by those for whose pleasure they are provided.

MacLeod Gazette: The grain fields are beginning to show up green and nice. We visited a rancher a few days ago who had spring wheat already three or four inches in height, and all such men will be overjoyed by the appearance of the very beneficial rains which have visited this section during the past week. The prospects for a good season are pretty good, and the farmer is correspondingly happy.

ATLWIN—At Holbrook on May 19th the wife of J. E. Arlyn of a son.

SUPREME COURT.

Queen vs Larose—Prisoner was charged with having stolen a pocket book from F. Marriaggi, and elected to be tried without a jury. He was found guilty and sentenced to two months in jail. Owing to Mr. Beck crown prosecutor, having acted at an earlier stage of the proceedings for Larose, Mr. Taylor acted for the crown and Mr. Bown for the prisoner.

Queen vs Pagnac—prisoner discharged.
McDonald vs Maloney & Johnstone—Action to recover horse hire, feed, etc., claimed by plaintiff over and above wages at $50 a month, which had already been paid. The defence asserted that the $50 a month was payment in full, judgment reserved. S. S. Taylor for plaintiff, N. D. Beck for defendant.

Maloney & Johnstone vs E. Looby—Claim for money received by Looby as plaintiff's agent. Claim put in for services rendered, judgment reserved. E. C. Emery for plaintiff, S. S. Taylor for defendant.

Demo vs Millette—Plaintiff not appearing judgment was given for defendant, in default, S. S. Taylor for plaintiff, A. Prince for defendant.

Atkinson vs Atkinson—Action to recover wages. Accounts referred to the clerk, and judgment withheld until the accounts are decided, S. S. Taylor for plaintiff, M. Mackenzie for defendant.

Federal Life Association vs Randall—Judgment reserved.

Grant vs St. Germain—Action for damages for negligence in working a horse and appropriating a mare. Counter claim put in for services rendered, not concluded. S. S. Taylor for plaintiff, N. D. Beck for defendant.

Cameron vs Fielders—Action on note; defendant paid part into court and set up a counter claim as to the balance. Counter claim of defendant withdrawn and judgment for plaintiff with costs. S. S. Taylor for plaintiff, N. D. Beck for defendant.

CONCERNING A CERTAIN HOG.

Medicine Hat News: The transference of Judge Macleod to Calgary is a direct violation of the eternal fitness of things, besides being one more move in the "hog" game which the citizens of Calgary—or some of them—seem to have set out to play. What good that sort of thing can do, beyond flattering the self conceit of Calgary, it is impossible even to guess at.

If Calgary be destined to be the great city which it appears to be, it surely ought to contrive to become so by its own intrinsic merits. It should have no need to rob adjoining towns in order to enrich itself. Yet, it is apparently bent on doing this very thing, judging from the way it is grabbing, or trying to grab, at everything in sight. Can it be possible that its citizens fail to see that by doing so they are, in the first place, advertising the fact that their town is a tub that cannot stand on its own bottom, but must be propped up by material taken from its neighbors; and, in the second place, that they are, in this policy of grab, bound to antagonize all the other towns that are laid under contribution for the purpose of restoring Calgary's stability and maintaining its self-arrogated importance? The cuckoo intruder in the hedge-sparrow's nest may grow to be a fat and a saucy bird, but it cannot expect to be popular with the other occupants of the nest.

The Mayor of Calgary in talking over the matter of the transference of Judge Macleod with a News representative last week, was evidently ashamed of the transaction, for he disclaimed having had anything to do with it. In fact he said that the Calgary bar had manipulated the wires without aid of any kind from the rest of the citizens. It may be so, but in whatever way it was done, and by whomever the mean scheme was engineered, it has done no good to Calgary, and it was a gross piece of injustice to have sanctioned the transference.

It is undeniable that there is a growing feeling in the Territories that Calgary is a pig that wants all the swill in the community trough, and disturbs every one in its vicinity by its incessant squeals for more. The inevitable result will be that the nuisance will have to be abated, and this daughter-of-the-horse-leech business put a stop to. All men outside of the Jew, can stand pork, but they—well—they draw the line at a hog.

Medicine Hat Times:—Miss Lillian Phelps, B. O., delivered a magnificent lecture in the Methodist church, last Thursday evening, under the auspices of the local Council of the Royal Templars of Temperance, to a large and appreciative audience. Miss Phelps is a clear and logical thinker and a splendid speaker.
